Highlights of the 2015 Report

Numbers of Young Elders Grow Over Ten Years; All Gains from Clergywomen

In 2005, the United Methodist Church reported the smallest percentage of under-35 elders ever. The 850 young elders that year represented 4.69 percent of active elders. Growth among young elders has been slow but relatively steady over the past ten years. In 2015, there are 986 young elders that comprise 6.56 percent of the pool of active elders, a pool now smaller by over 3,000 elders.

Gender has been a major factor in the gains to the extent that there are actually fewer young male elders now than in 2005 with all the increases coming from young female clergy.

Young Male Elders in 2005 –	587
Young Male Elders in 2015 –	582

Young Female Elders in 2005 –	263
Young Female Elders in 2015 –	404

Percentage of Young Clergywomen Grows Consistently among Elders and Deacons

For many years after seminary enrollments showed a balance between men and women students, the presence of young United Methodist clergywomen seemed to fall much below their proportion of seminary students. That has now changed steadily over recent years. In the last ten years, the percentage of women among young elders has increased from 31 percent in 2005 to 41 percent in 2015, the highest ever.

Deacons, on the other hand, have traditionally been predominantly female. Yet, even among deacons, the percentage of women has increased. Since 2012 the percentage of female deacons has increased each year from 68 percent in 2012 to 80 percent in 2015.

Among local pastors, the young cohort is increasing but primarily among men, with the proportion of young female local pastors dropping somewhat.

Fewer Elders, More Local Pastors

Elders and local pastors are appointed as pastors of congregations. The number of active elders continues to decline as the number of local pastors grows. Since 1990 there are 6,488 fewer elders and 3,525 more local pastors. In 1990, there were over five elders for each local pastor; today there are two elders for each local pastor. In 2015, there are 15,019 elders and 7,464 local pastors.

Elders Older Despite More Young Elders

Elders between ages 55 and 72 comprise 55 percent of all active elders, the highest percentage in history. This group reached 50 percent for the first time ever in 2010. This age cohort represented only 30 percent of active elders as recently as 2000. Previously their percentage of the total was even lower. The median age of elders remained at 56 in 2015, the highest in history. The median age was 50 in 2000 and 45 in 1973. The average age remains at 53, a historic high, though unchanged for six years. The mode age (the single age most represented) is 60, down from 61 last year.

Unfortunately, the modest gain in the presence of young elders was offset by a decline in the percentage of elders aged 35 to 54. This mid-age group continues to shrink, from 65 percent of all active elders in 2000 to 38 percent in 2015.

Purpose and Description

The purpose of this ongoing research effort is to identify clergy age trends in the United Methodist Church so that denominational leaders have the data for planning and a baseline for monitoring future changes. This report builds on previous reports on clergy age trends issued by the Lewis Center for Church Leadership. The first report, Clergy Age Trends in the United Methodist Church: 1985-2005, documented the dramatic decline in United Methodist young clergy in both numbers and percentages over 20 years. This report presents a snapshot of where clergy age trends stand in May 2015.

Clergy ages are not easy to track because few units of the church have up-to-date age information on clergy. The one exception is the General Board of Pension and Health Benefits (GBPHB). The Lewis Center for Church Leadership of Wesley Theological Seminary has worked with the Board to determine age trends for United Methodist clergy.

The project covers elders, deacons, and local pastors in the five jurisdictional conferences of the United Methodist Church. While not all clergy are in the denominational pension system, most are, and the percentage not in the system tends to stay the same across the years, thus making trend comparisons possible. For local pastors, both full-time and part-time local pastors are included. Since the GBPHB does not keep records of clergy by race, we are not able to make comparisons by racial groups.

To help the church address the dramatic loss of young clergy first reported in 2005, the Lewis Center for Church Leadership has provided resources beginning with The Crisis of Younger Clergy by Lovett H. Weems, Jr., and Ann A. Michel (Abingdon, 2008) and the formation of the Lewis Fellows program to provide advanced leader development for approximately twenty young clergy each year.

More recently, the Lewis Center developed a series of free one-page downloadable documents to assist those seeking to support younger clergy.

Contributors

Lovett H. Weems, Jr., professor of church leadership and founding director of the Lewis Center for Church Leadership, and Joseph E. Arnold, research manager of the Lewis Center, were project directors. Ann A. Michel, associate director of the Lewis Center, and Matthew Lyons, marketing manager of the Lewis Center, contributed to the project. Barbara Boigegrain, general secretary of the General Board of Pension and Health Benefits, and the staff of the Board, particularly Anne Borish, Peter Doheny, Helen Exarhakos, Tanya Lerner, and Otissteann Arrington, provided essential cooperation and data. Thanks go also to the General Council on Finance and Administration for sharing data they collect.

Young Clergy Trends

Young Elders

- The number of under-35 elders increased from 949 in 2014 to 986 in 2015.
- The percentage of young elders grew from 6.17 percent in 2014 to 6.57 percent in 2015.
- The Texas Conference again reported the highest percentage of young elders at 11.74 percent. This is the first time that an annual conference has been number one in two consecutive years since the Arkansas Conference did so in 2007 and 2008.
- The Top Ten Conferences by percentage
 - Texas (#1 in 2014 and 2012)
 - Mississippi (#1 in 2010 and 2006)
 - Kentucky
 - North Alabama
 - Virginia
 - Dakotas (new since last report)
 - Alabama-West Florida
 - Great Plains (new since last report)
 - Tennessee (new since last report)
 - North Carolina (new since last report)
- Trending Conferences (those with strong increases over the past three years; in alphabetical order)
 - California-Nevada
 - Detroit
 - Florida
 - North Texas
 - West Ohio
- As in previous years, most of the conferences with larger percentages of young clergy are from the Southeastern and South Central Jurisdictions. Dakotas from the North Central Jurisdiction appears in the Top Ten for the first time since 2005-2008 when it was in the group each year. Since these reports began in 2005, the North Central and Western Jurisdictions have had two conferences each in the Top Ten, and the Northeastern Jurisdiction has had one conference in the Top Ten lists. There is great geographic diversity in the Trending Conferences list.
- The largest total number of young elders (60) is in the Virginia Conference.

Young Deacons

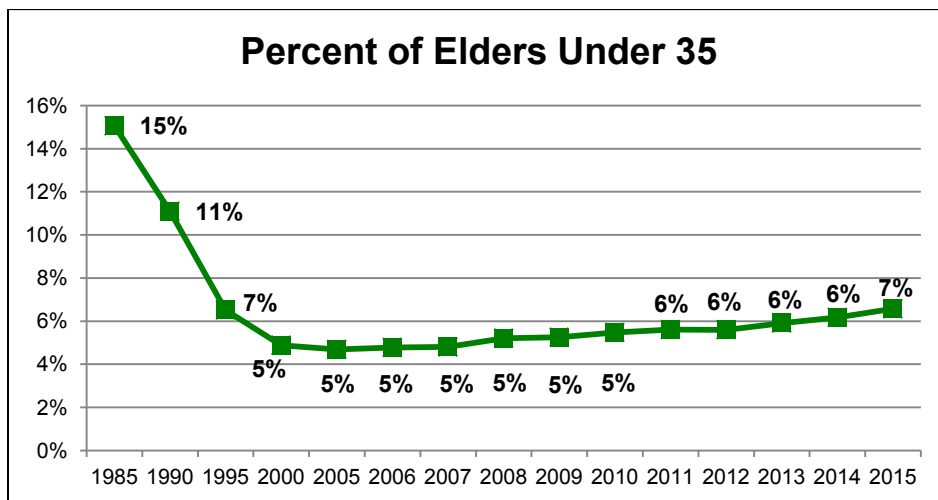

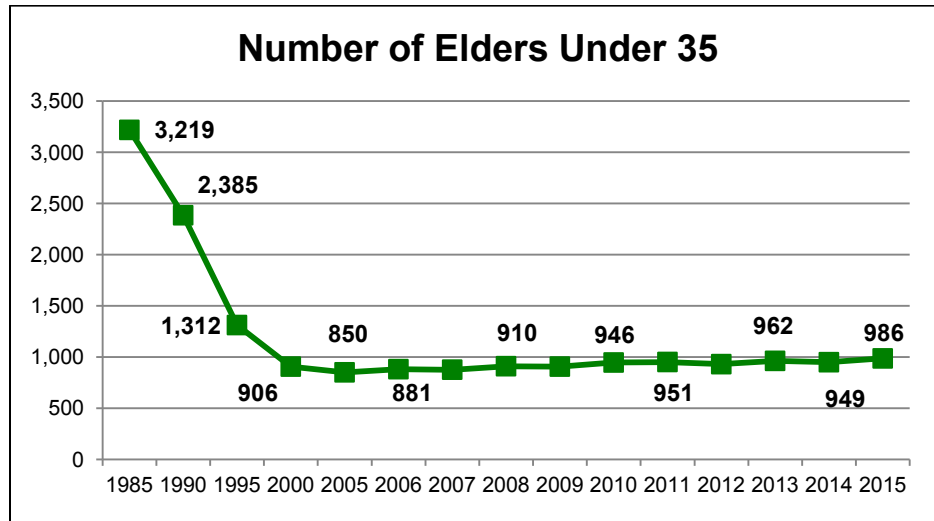

- The number of under-35 deacons increased from 86 in 2014 to 90 in 2015. This is a record high number of young deacons.
- The percentage of young deacons increased from 9.01 percent in 2014 to 9.43 percent in 2015, also a record high.
- While the number of young deacons is still small compared to young elders, their percentage of all deacons has run consistently higher than that of young elders since 2008.
- The percentage of women young deacons, currently 80 percent, continues to increase, up from 68 percent as recently as 2012.

Young Local Pastors

- The number of under-35 local pastors increased from 568 in 2014 to 601 in 2015.
- The percentage of young local pastors increased from 7.68 percent in 2014 to 8.05 percent in 2015.
- The number and percentage of young local pastors in 2015 are both record highs.

Elders

To have comparable figures across the years for elders, the figures include not only those ordained elder but also those commissioned on the elder track but not yet ordained.

About the Lewis Center for Church Leadership

Established by Wesley Theological Seminary in 2003, the Lewis Center for Church Leadership has worked to help the United Methodist Church address its current challenges. The Center is building a vision for church leadership grounded in faith, informed by knowledge, and exercised in effective action. It seeks a holistic understanding of Christian leadership that brings together theology and management, scholarship and practice, research and application.

Committed to the broad goal of helping the church reach more people, younger people, and more diverse people, the Center focuses on improving leadership effectiveness and providing actionable insights and best practices to promote effective ministry. The Center seeks to be a trusted resource for church leadership, helping congregations and denominations serve, thrive, and grow. The Center staff of six, along with other researchers and consultants who assist with special projects, also draws on the expertise of the entire Wesley faculty and a wide array of gifted practitioners.
